The Reward of Labor in the South.

We said, yesterday, that labor is better remunerated in the Southern States than anywhere else in the world. We think the proposition correct. We do not speak of the rate of wages alone, but propose to include all the advantages that the laborer here enjoys. Of course, we mean labor that is labor. The saunterer and the shirk does poor work, and gets poor reward, here as well as everywhere else. But the energetic and faithful laborer has a rare chance. We know a colored man, with a wife and three children, who last year supported his family, and laid by $1,000, by farm labor. We know another, with five children, none of them large enough to render much of any valuable assistance, who lived well and saved $300, and his chance was not a very favorable one, as the land which he worked did not yield more than a quarter of a bale to the acre. This year he will do better, and will probably clear $500, besides having corn and pork enough to carry him through the next year. Let us see how this is done. Any good, reliable man can get all the land he can work upon shares—that is, mules, farming implements and lands will be furnished him, and he will get half of the crop. He can tend twenty or twenty-five acres, and have his garden and sweet potato patch besides. Suppose he works Arkansas land or some of the best Mississippi. He ought to make ten bales of cotton, half of which is his, and all the corn he needs. If he has a family to assist him, he can do proportionately more. He has his rent and fuel free. By ordinary management and economy, he can live comfortably and save from $200 to $500 a year easily. The whole cotton crop is estimated this year at 2,000,000 bales. The price promises to be high, so that we may calculate that the crop will be worth $200,000,000. Suppose that this crop was all raised on shares—and the demand for labor is such that the most of planters are glad to make such arrangements—there would be $100,000,000 to divide among the laborers. But this is only about one-half of what they would earn if they were industrious, because the corn and other crops, as well as their vegetables and fruit, would be worth almost as much more to them. The climate is such that they can easily make themselves comfortable all the year round. Industry, intelligence and economy would soon make the laboring population here the most comfortable and independent on the face of the earth. The savings of a few years, rightly managed, would soon enable each laborer to become his own employer, for land is abundant and cheap. Soon the man can get a little tract, and have a permanent home for his family, where comfort would always be present, and where luxury and elegance would add to their enjoyment, sooner or later, in sufficient degree.

The laborer does not know what a capital he possesses. He can soon acquire at least 100 acres of land, and then his possessions steadily increase by accretion. He will have cows and oxen, horses and mules, sheep and swine and poultry, and they will increase so as to add to his wealth more rapidly than the highest rate of interest would yield. Let him become an intelligent and skillful farmer, and his land will grow better and more productive year by year, till old age overtakes him surrounded with plenty and affluence. There is so much excellent land yet unopened; it is so cheap and the staples produced so valuable and in such demand, that the ability to labor well must, for a long time, be a valuable possession to any man. Industry is the best aid of virtue and intelligence. The industrious man is seldom a vicious man, and he need not be an ignorant man. Labor is the chief handmaid of knowledge, for the mind is healthy and vigorous in a sound and vigorous body. Let the free schools everywhere give such education as will prepare the mind and give a taste for learning, and the leisure hours from labor are apt to be well employed in storing the mind with knowledge. Burritt, "the learned blacksmith," acquired fifty languages while laboring daily at the forge. Samuel Drew, sometimes called the English Plato, wrote his celebrated treatise on immortality and resurrection on his shoe maker's bench, using his cutting-board for a desk. We have known many a New England boy pursue a regular course of study while laboring regularly at farm work. The writer of this learned the Greek verb during a haying season, when eighteen years old, while mowing as handsome a swath as any of his father's laborers, and striving with them for the mastery in pitching the hay most rapidly. Tupto was well mowed and raked and pitched into his brain in all its variations, and has never departed, as it might have done if fed to him with a silver spoon. Labor, industry, economy and virtue are what the South now needs to make her prosperous and happy. If she has these, her politics will need very little attention.

A despatch to the Charleston Republican says that one of the contractors on the Blue Ridge Railroad was to leave Columbia last Monday, for the purpose of commencing work on the tunnel, with a new patent drill. It has been used successfully elsewhere, and can bore five feet per day. The motive power is compressed air.

Eight Murders by a Man Twenty-Two Years Old.—The Knoxville (Tenn.) Press gives a detailed account of a murder which lately occurred in Fentress County, Tennessee, the capture of the murderer, and the testimony against him:

"On the 20th of last November, a citizen of Fentress County went to the house of old Mrs. Galloway, and found the old lady, her daughter and two grandchildren lying upon the floor, with their heads split open with an axe, and the floor deluged with blood and brains. No certain clue could be found. One of the children, a boy, seven years of age, showed signs of life, and was removed to a neighbor's house. Two days afterwards the little fellow showed signs of consciousness, and was asked, 'Who had done it?' His reply was 'Cal.' This information, connected with other circumstances, directed suspicion to Calvin Logston, who had about that time fled to his home on Green River, in Kentucky.

"He was pursued, captured and brought back to Fentress County, by which time the little boy, who seemed to have been preserved by a special Providence, was so nearly recovered as to give a correct account of the whole bloody tale. From his testimony it appears that Logston came to the house with two women, his aunts, named Brown, and demanded of 'Granny' her money, with threats of a presented pistol. Failing to get any, he put up his pistol and seized an axe he found in the house and struck the old lady on the head, and then served the young woman and a four-year old boy in the same manner. One of the women then seized a shovel and dealt the little witness a blow, which is the last thing he recollects.

"Upon the return of the prisoner to Fentress County, the citizens erected an impromptu gallows for his accommodation, but by the efforts of Judge Houk, Judge Lynch yielded jurisdiction. Failing to get a jury in that county, the venue was changed to Scott County, where, after a long and laborious trial, the verdict has just been rendered of 'guilty of murder in the first degree, without any mitigating circumstances,' and sentence of death pronounced by Judge Houk, to take effect on the 18th of October, proximo. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, and the prisoner and his guard arrived here yesterday. Although the prisoner is only twenty-two years of age, he freely confesses to eight murders."

Two More Diabolical Outrages by Negroes.—Information was received here yesterday that two white girls, aged respectively fifteen and thirteen years, daughters of a highly respectable citizen of Rockbridge County, whose name we withhold for the present, was most brutally outraged on Friday last by two black fiends, the oldest of whom is not more than sixteen years and the youngest but about fifteen. We were unable to gather the full particulars of these fiendish deeds, but from what we can learn it appears that the villains laylaid their victims not far from the house of their parents, and accomplished their atrocious purpose. One of the scoundrels was captured Sunday morning and lodged in jail in Lexington. The other was still at large Sunday evening, but the people of the entire neighborhood in which the outrages were perpetrated are scouring the country in search of him, and he has probably been arrested by this time.—Lynchburg (Va.) News.

A Girl Shot and Killed.—On Saturday last, whilst Mr. John Risk, who lives on the farm of Mr. Samuel X. Kerr, near Summerden, in this County, was handling his gun, it was accidentally discharged, and shot his daughter, about twenty years of age, in the head—killing her almost instantly. This was the only child he had living—his only son being shot and killed during the war.

PAINLESS DIGESTION.—"No man," says Sir Astley Cooper, "ought to know by his sensations that he has a stomach." In other words, when digestion is perfect there is neither pain nor uneasiness in the region where it takes place. Nausea, want of appetite, flatulency, oppression after eating, shooting pains in the epigastrium, a flushing of the face at meal times, and a furrowed tongue in the morning, are among the direct symptoms of indigestion. Constipation, biliousness, headache, nervous irritability, physical weakness and low spirits are its almost invariable accompaniments. All these indications of indigestion, whether immediate or secondary, are usually aggravated by hot weather.

The close of summer is, therefore, the season when the victim of dyspepsia most urgently needs a tonic and regulating medicine. Of course, every invalid has many advisers. One friend recommends one drug, another another; but in a multitude of counselors there is not always safety. THE STANDARD REMEDY OF THE PRESENT AGE FOR INDIGESTION, in all its stages, is HOSFETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Time has proved all things, has established its reputation as a medicine, with invigorating qualities of the highest order, and is admitted both by the public and the profession to be the surest protection against all diseases that are produced or propagated by pestiferous air or an wholesome water, that has ever been used either in the United States or tropical America.

In cases of constipation resulting from a want of muscular tone in the intestines, the effect of the BITTERS is perfectly marvellous; and without the dangerous sequences of mercury, it restores the disordered liver to a normal condition. Aug 18 46.

A Card.—Southern Life Insurance Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

The above Company was organized in 1866, in consequence of the wholesale forfeiture of Southern policies by Northern companies. The unparalleled success of the enterprise has forced several of these companies to restore their Southern policies, from the fact that they could not operate in our midst without the appearance of honesty.

We keep all our money at home to build up our impoverished country—every dollar of premium being safely invested in the State from which it is derived. The institution is purely Southern, and hence should appeal with great force to the patriotism and sympathy of every Southern heart.

It is not our purpose to make war on other companies, but to exhibit the special advantages offered by this purely Southern Company—founded on patriotism and solid wealth. Its ratio of assets to liabilities—the true test of a company's strength—is second to none on this continent—being nearly 300 to 100.

Whenever and wherever we have presented the claims of this Company, it has not only enlisted the sympathies of our people, but has also secured their hearty co-operation. We have secured 500 policies in South Carolina since the 10th of February. We number among our Directors Gen. Wade Hampton and Col. Wm. Johnston, gentlemen well known to every citizen of South Carolina. We appeal personally to the people of South Carolina to assist in pushing forward this deservedly popular Southern institution.

J. H. MILLER, General Agent Southern Life Insurance Co. B. W. LAWTON, State Agent.

We cheerfully recommend the above Company to the patronage of the citizens of South Carolina.

Incorporated 1819—Charter Perpetual.

GEO. HUGGINS, Agent, COLUMBIA, S. C.

CAPITAL, $3,000,000.

THIS Company received premiums upon fire risks in the United States from July 1, 1868, to July 1, 1869, amounting to $3,487,525.06. It paid losses during the same period amounting to $1,622,000. This giant office more than keeps pace with the growth of the general fire insurance business of the country. Nothing shakes it from its pre-eminence. Last year its premiums received were double the total received in 1863; and the ratio of loss to premiums received less than any year's ratio of the Company's previous half century of business.

The AETNA's surplus is now nearly equal to its capital, which, with ordinary success, will make it $6,000,000.

Its present management has never been surpassed in ability throughout the Company's history of fifty years.
